Distinguished Rector Rafael Robaina,

The COVID-19 is now fast spreading all across the globe. It is our sincere hope that you, your family and every colleague at your esteemed university are all well during this tough time. Recently, various forms of support were offered by your university to express the concern and backup for China's fighting against the epidemic, and the Chinese staff at your university have also been taken good care of. We're particularly grateful for all of these. With our concerted and arduous efforts, the disease is now contained in China with substantial achievements and things are indeed looking up. At the same time, however, we have learned that unfortunately the pandemic has hit your country as well and citizens are exposed to higher health risks and under considerable physical and mental pressures, which we absolutely empathize with. On behalf of the Confucius Institute Headquarters and in my own name, I would like to extend my concern and support to you from the bottom of my heart. We will stand by you and all friends over the world to provide the greatest help within our capacity.

We believe that with the relentless endeavor, your esteemed country is bound to be victorious against the disease, and all university faculties and students, as well as colleagues at the Confucius Institute will surely be safe and sound throughout this hard period of time.

The COVID-19 is a common enemy to mankind. People from all counties shall prevail over the disease if we consolidate and battle shoulder-to-shoulder with each other. Let's help and support one another, march in the same direction to embrace a more glorious tomorrow.

Yours sincerely,

Ma Jianfei

Deputy Chief Executive of the Confucius Institute Headquarters
